

A chance to truly change women's lives.

Wings 4 Women would like to introduce you to Joy Amuso.

She is a 26-year-old Ugandan who lives up to her name, as she is full of JOY! Joy is currently a midwife and has supported W4W over the years during our medical outreaches, where we offer education and birth control to Ugandan girls and women who live in remote villages.

During our WINGS outreach this past May, Joy was instrumental in communicating with the teenage girls, offering her testimony about how important it is to value yourself and your body. We had deep, rich conversations with Joy about her dreams and desires. We came to learn that being a licensed nurse was something she had always wanted to do but never believed it would happen because of the financial obligation for university training in a nursing program. WINGS would like to ask our tribe of amazing women if they would like to partner with us in helping JOY achieve her dream. We already know and love Joy for her heart and desire to serve other girls and women. She has proven herself to us, and we want to help her dreams be realized.

Collectively, we know and trust that we can accomplish this goal.

Any small contribution to this endeavor will be appreciated, and know that your support will greatly affect not only the life of one young woman but also those two hands and joyful hearts that will continue to touch and support girls in Uganda beyond measure.

Will you join us? Please use the link on the donation page.

